July 7-11, 2008 8:30-12:30
Monday – Friday

This course is open to undergraduate and graduate students, early childhood professionals and elementary teachers who are interested in exploring the power of materials to become languages for thinking, learning, communication and collaboration.

Through experiences with a variety of materials, participants will have the opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of what Reggio educators call, "The Hundred Languages of Children" and the role of materials in individual and group learning. In addition to workshop experiences, there will be focused discussion groups around selected readings. Course instructors will share examples from school settings from infants through grade 5.

Content to be covered:

- Materials and languages
- Documentation
- The Roles of the Adult in Relationship to Co-construction with Children
- Learning Groups and Group Learning
- Identity and Learning in Community
- Emergent Curriculum and Standardized Expectations and Outcomes.
